

Virtual reality experience of 28th International Conference WAAVP (Dublin 2021)

First, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the organizing and scientific committees of 28th International Conference WAAVP (Dublin 2021) to keep our spirits up and make this unprecedented fully virtual event real, unforgettable and extremely efficacious.

My interest and enthusiasm to contribute and share my research work in the Veterinary Parasitology has never ceased but only continued to grow. For this purpose, the WAAVP African Foundation enabling me to realize my dream to participate in my first ever international conference. Awarding the AF scholarship facilitate me to exploit the potential of my work on anthelmintic resistance in perspective to the WAAVP and global concern and raise awareness about the problems facing developing areas of the world. This was emphasizing during my talk and reflected in constructing global networking to achieve the goal of the conference “Parasitologists without Borders”.

Mohamed Helal
Assistant Researcher, NRC, Egypt

Although the virtual nature of the conference this year, the WAAVP virtual platform offered an exceptional experience beyond the expectations and enhanced the attendance of agenda smoothly. The video demonstration, guide materials and the zoom meeting training session for oral presenters was really incredible and easing the access to the conference virtual platform.

Similarly, the research quality of the plenary sessions and posters were relevant and explore universe subjects in veterinary Parasitology such as drug resistance, drug development, vaccine approaches, diagnostic and control techniques. It was an ideal opportunity to hold discussions with experts, vulnerable feedbacks, constructive criticism and good scientific communications that indeed contributed to widen my horizon and triggered some novel ideas. The professional experience I gained during the conference enabling me to have a global view of the ongoing challenges and better perception of veterinary parasitology research.

At the personal level, I strongly believe that the WAAVP conference is preparing me to the research career, integrate with my professional community and energize scientific research in our countries throughout the upcoming years. Finally, Congratulations to the organizers, they made it a complete package for learning, networking and fun despite the Pandemic COVID-19 without sparing any efforts. To the WAAVP African foundation, All this was made possible through your scholarship and once again, I would like to thank you for your generosity & the personal investment and good faith you have put into my future. I look forward to attending the next event with you in-person.
